48 states and the District of Columbia have a definition for telehealth, telemedicine, or both.

48 states reimburse for live video through Medicaid.

12 states reimburse for store and forward.

19 states reimburse for remote patient monitoring.

2 states offer reimbursement through their Department of Aging Services.

30 states reimburse for a transmission/facility fee.

29 states include some sort of informed consent.

25 states limit the type of facility that may serve as an originating site to a specific site list.

29 states require a physical exam prior to a prescription.

35 jurisdictions have active private payer laws.

9 states issue special licenses or certificates for telehealth.

In South Dakota, an originating site and a distant site cannot be in the same community.

© 2016 Public Health Institute Center for Connected Health Policy

www.cchpca.org

August 2016